BOOK SYNOPSIS

Excerpt from Men, Places, and Things The papers in this volume have been written at intervals of time considerably apart, most of them for the present work, the rest for other publications. The paper on William Wirt was written in answer to an invitation given to the author by the New York Biographical and Genealogical Society to address it on that subject; after having been read before which Society it was read before the Rhode Island Historical Society at Providence. For his knowledge of Mr. Wirt the author is indebted in no small degree to the elaborate and interesting biography by J. P. Kennedy. In the paper on "The London Pulpit" no account is given of Mr. Spurgeon, for the reason that the author has already tried to portray him and his manner in the pulpit in a previous work, "Hours with Men and Books," pp. 80-96.
